

CASE STUDY

Door furniture to suit a diverse range of styles

Construction specialists Thames Ceilings, have a 30-year heritage in the refurbishment and re-development of commercial and privately-owned properties across Oxfordshire. Their customers expect high-quality products delivered with knowledge and expertise, and those are the qualities that Thames Ceilings look for in their own suppliers.

A TRUSTED RELATIONSHIP

For 20 years, Thames Ceilings have been working with Oxford Ironmongery on the specification and supply of door furniture for their Oxfordshire design projects.

It's a close working relationship which is highly valued by both companies and, in a city with the style diversity of Oxford, with modern commercial, and contemporary domestic properties, through to historical listed buildings, the ability to be adaptable to different environments and have knowledge of a wide range of materials, finishes and effects is essential.

Oxford Ironmongery's Architectural Ironmonger, Chantelle Coney, has worked with Thames Ceilings for the past 7 years, and her broad knowledge of commercial and domestic door furniture is invaluable, from product selection through to creation of a fully detailed door schedule.

Thames Ceilings find it extremely helpful to be able to visit the Oxford Ironmongery showroom in Headington, to be able to match a handle, or for Chantelle and the team to source a product

“Chantelle and the team are very good at understanding what we're looking to achieve and suggesting options from a range of suppliers, offering the best possible product or finish to meet the project requirements. They are a long-standing specialist ironmonger backed-up with extensive knowledge and high-quality products.”
